

TestMyPaint sample booklet

Three real rooms, five colours each, painted by the same pipeline your photo goes through.

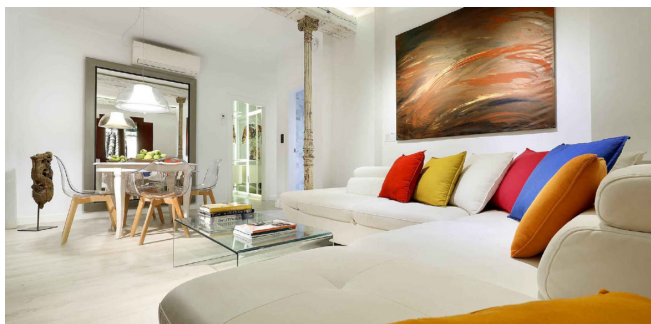

Every picture in this booklet is a real render. The same model, the same prompt and the same colour correction that runs when you upload a photo of your own room — nothing here was retouched, and nothing was chosen from a different tool.

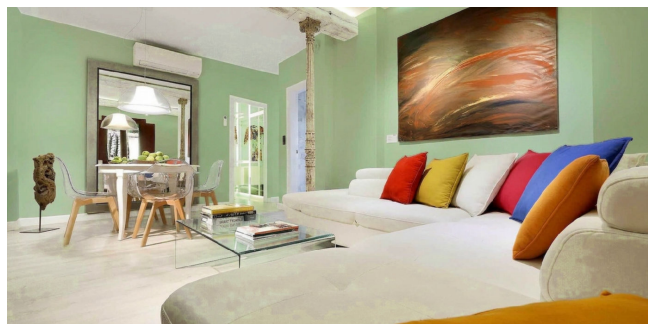

Under each pair is the measured difference between the painted wall and the colour code it was asked for, in ΔE 2000 units. Under 5 is a close match. We print the number we measured, including when it is not the flattering one.

Screen colours vary. A render is for deciding what to try, not for signing off a purchase — always confirm with a physical swatch under the light in the actual room before you buy paint.

This booklet is free and shows somebody else's rooms. Upload a photo of yours and the first render is free too, with no account.
